Exhibition History

Possessing a deep knowledge in many professional fields from creative arts, technology development, to business strategy, Ullrich has created installations all around the globe, for BMW, Sony, Porsche or Arri media. Ullrich was presented inter alia at media art festivals (Simultan, Trans U, DOK Festival, CCC, etc) and worked as an audiovisual artist for operas like "Einstein on the Beach" by Phillip Glass and Robert Wilson or Hamlet (Kay Voges - Dortmund 2017/19), . Among others he has performed together with electronicmusic artists like Frank Bretschneider (raster noton), Scanner (Audiosphere), AGF (BPitch Control), Vladislav Delay (raster Noton) and Kyoka (raster Noton).

Resumé

Code artist, designer and executive creative director of complex audiovisual scenarios. His practice evolves around computer graphics, software engineering, computational design with minimal aesthetics. Ullrich aspires to build hybrid spaces with technological-scientific innovation and artistic expectation.

The works are characterized by a tight integration of auditory and visual ranges of experience: specifically produced audio design and sound art accentuate visual processes and video signals on the one hand; on the other hand specifically conceived and programmed real-time interactive graphics visualize the dynamics and structures of music, language, and sound resulting invisible, synthetic experiences.

Another strong emphasis lies in the interface between humane and machine: by programming user interfaces, capturing moving bodies via Motion Capture or Motion Tracking, or by scanning human participants with ID scan technology, a new form of aesthetics is created: digital software and analog hardware begin to interact and by that, locate the analog, physical human being in new, trans- or rather post-human contexts.
